Presentation Topic:

Why Towns Should Play a Part in Planning for our Energy Future

Energy has become an increasingly important topic having a bearing on everything from the cost of living to climate change to energy security. Experts increasingly see electricity, in conjunction with clean and domestic energy sources, as the path forward for meeting many of these challenges. Yet electricity is expensive in NH - with the residential sector paying the second highest average retail price of all 50 states.

Attendees will hear from Don Kreis, NH's Consumer Advocate, to learn more about why electricity is expensive in NH and what is being done about it at the State, regional and local levels. We will also discuss how municipalities in the Region are starting community power/electric aggregation programs to address their needs.

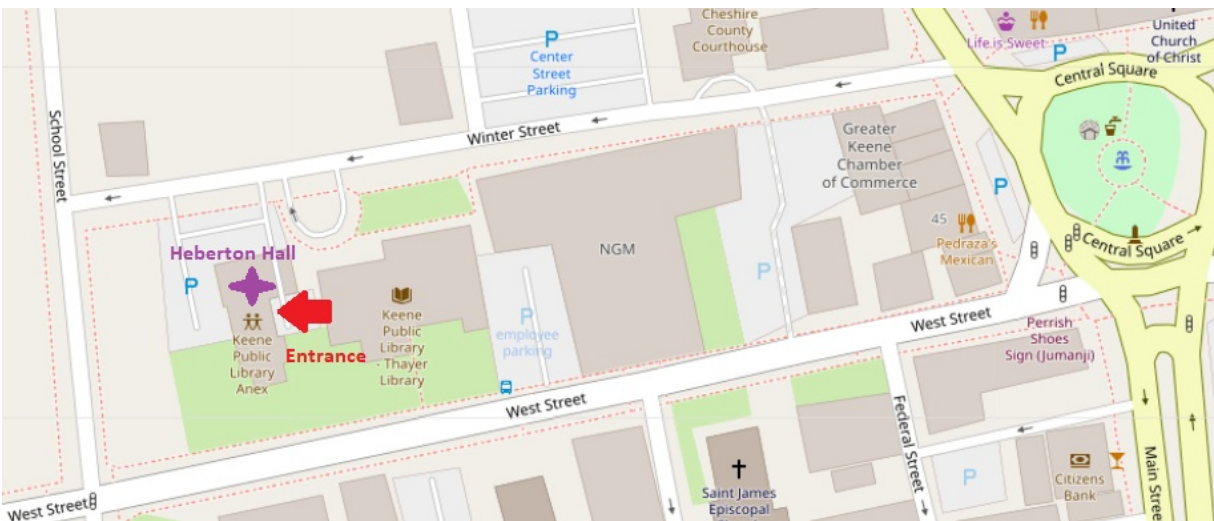

Although there is no fee to attend, advance registration is required.
